She was acting as agent for the sale of eigars farnished by Samuel Cark, of Bridgeport, and Mr. Clark found it necessary to visit his agent every week or two, to see that the business was not neglected. Charley joined heartly in all the merry-making of the young people, smoked his eigar and "smiled" with the lack, and was nitogether a popular fellow. A number of matrous thought him a destrable person for a son-in-law, and some curious letters were found addressed to him on the subject. During the time of his residence in Derby, there was an interval of two or three manths when was an interval of two or three months which charles was absent in Oxford; the stories are that his cares and responsibilities were somewhat increased in the meantime. Finally an arrest was made in Derby by an officer who suspected the truth, and Miss Clarisas L. Mosier, of East Windsor, was persuaded to don her appropriate attire. We don't know what has become of her—perhaps she has been taken to the Retreat in Hartford, and perhaps she has established a clear agency somewhere else. the Retreat in Harriston, somewhere else.

Our usually quiet village was the scene of great excitement on Sunday morning last, occa loned by the sudden appearance in our midst of about forty gneriths, led by Clark, alias Sue Mundy. They approached the town by the Lehanen road, taking us by surprise at about daylight, halting in the streets. In a sho t time they were searching every stable in town for herses. The stable belonging to the Weatherford Hetel, being well tilled with fine saddle horses, presented a fine attraction for the scoundrels. Our citizens were thrown entirely off their guard by being told that the party were Federal soldiers, belonging to the 1th Misseuri cavalry, and were bound to have freshneres to make a scout nipon. SANS SOURT—One of the most characteristic traits, extensively symbolical of Frederick the Second's intentions and outlooks at this epoch, is his justelling of himself in the little dwelling house of Sans Souci. The plan of Sans Souci—an elegant, commodions little "Country Box," quite of modest pretensions, one story high; on the pleasant Hill-top near Potsdam, with other little green hills, and pleasant views of land and water, all round—had been sketched in part by Freiderick himself; and terracings of the Hill-side were just beginning when he quitted for the Last-War. "April 14. which he quitted for the Last war. And It.
1715," while he lay in those perflons enigmatic characteristances at Nelsse with Pandours and devouring bug hears round him, "the foundation stone was laid" (Knobelsdorf being architect, once more, as in the old Reinsberg case); and the work, which had been steadily proceeding while the Master struggled in those dangerous battles and adventures far away from it, was in good forwardness at his return. An object of heerini interest to him; prophetic of calmer years ahead.

It was not till May, 1747, that the formal occupation took place: "Mayday 1747," he had a grand House-heating, or "First Dinner of two hundred covers; and May 19th-29th was the first night of his electing there." For the next forty, carry expecially a years advanced by think, "decline, with thanks." And the idage of propidiating Spain, the most obstinate slaved a proposal state than the world, by a proposal to abolish the system, is so eccentric as to throw doubt on the reality of the whole discussion.

Hon. Joseph Serar has just presented his credentials as S nat or from Virginia reper, and his case will be a subject of contro ery. The "Cold Dominion" is ostensibly di 'ded now into three States; the government of ne being at Whe ling, the other at Alexandria, and the third at lifehmond, under rebel authori Congress has power to determine the qualicrib ns of its own members and we shall watch, with some emiosity, the disposal now to be nade of the Hon. Joseph Segar's credentials. The idea of nationality is deepening and daily strengthening in the popular mind of this country. The theories of local sovereignty, se long carried to an extravagant extent, are long their hold upon public favor, and the esertial importance of national unity and inare one people and have a common interest le aw the grand lever of popular action. It trengthens the State-' combination in support the National Government: it Impels the irresist. le progress of our armies: It le the basis of every enlivening hope of future power and glors to the country.

ACBICULTURAL COLLEGE AND KENTICKY INIVERSITY. The House of Representatives of the Kentucky Legi latere, in Frankfort, passed a bill on the 7th inst, for an Agric ltural College, by a vote of 6 for and 19 against, showing a very large in ajority in favor of the bill. This is one of the most import int measures which has been before the Legislature this section. We have had the pleasure of an extended interview with the chairman of the committee who reported the bill, and from him we learn that the State has done the very best thing possible in passing this one the very best thing possible in passing this section four of the bill provides that nothin section for the beta provides that nothing section in the leave be taught the pupils, and that a majority of the Professors and managers shall never be members of any one denomalation at the same time. This is the guard which a wise Legislature throws around the nee of this sacred fund, and must silence forever the clamor of sectorical introducts and historical fourth endows. of sectarian intruders and bigoted fault-finders. The interest arising from the land-grant fund to be paid semi-annually to the treasurer of

The bill provides that the State shall have exthe bin provides that the State shall have exclusive control of the money to be derived from the Congressional Land Grant; the State to appoint a committee of visitors, who shall see that the Kentucky University is complying at all times with the act of Congress and the law of the State; the University to teach three hundred young men of the State, free of charge, to furnish grounds and buildings, library, apparatus, chemical, philosophical, astronomical, mechanical, &c., &c., without charge to the State.

to be paid semi-annually to the treasurer of Kentucky University, and by him disbursed to the Professors on their salaries.

At the present time, it is impossible for the State to provide University buildings and grounds. Lentucky University proposes to do this. Transvivania University has agreed to turn over to Kentucky University all its grounds, buildings library, apparatus, and endowment to accept from the State the trust, and the proposed amendment.

We are also agents for the enter forthwith point the great work of educating three hundred young men for the State free of any charge for tuition. The State has had no offer of aid from any other institution, and nnless something is specific done the State will lose the Congressional Land Grant. Kentucky University, with her $200,000 endowment fund, ow bearing interest, with $150,000 furnish d v Congress to her.

The bill passed the House; has been reported to the Senate, and will come up to-day for con-sideration by that body. We trust it will meet with as much favor there as it did in the Il mse. We cannot see on what grounds opposition can be made.

While war is desolating much of our country, let us not forget to foster our institutions of learning. A bright future, we trust, yet awaits us, when swords shall be heaten into plough-shares and spears into pruning hooks, when peace shall fold her white wings once more over our land.

PRO BONO PUBLICA.

PRO BONO PUBLICO. over our land. COL. STARLING AND LIEUT.-COL. WEIR. Let 184 H.J.E. Feb. 9, 1865. To the Fditors of the Louisville Jor rual:

An unfortunate misapprehension occasioned the "dishonorable discharge" of Colonel Elmund A. Starling and Lleutenant-Colonel Edward R. Welr, late of the 36th Kentneky regiment, and, before the rectification of the error, publicity was given to the affair through the news organs all over the land. By an order, emanating from the War Department, and published in your issue of Monday, Colonel Starling has been reinstated and "honorably mustered tion from the effects of the egregious blunder ustice to an officer who has already given four Colonel Starling, speedy and ample reparation will be made by the War Department, for the ited and canseless injustice done him.

THACKERAY'S SCHOOL DAYS .- It was when was between the ares of thirteen and cen and a half of sixteen that I knew bekeray last. He was then a rosy-ficed boy, with dark curling hair, and a quick, intelligent eye, ever twinkling with humor, and good nu-mor. He was ston, and broad-et, and gave no from c of the stature he afterwards reached. It was during a short but severe illness, just be-fore he left school, that he grew rapidly, leav-ing his slek-bed certainly a good in my inches lig his stek-bed certainty a good many inches taller than he was when heentered it, and head ling at once nearly all his contemporaries. No men ever owed more of his mental growth the time and exercise, and less of his bodily stature. For the usual schoolboy sports and games Thackeary had no taste or passion what ever, any more than in after-life for those field sports which seem to have been the delight of his schools follow and follow humorist accept. his school-fellow and fellow-humorist Leech, Such amusements would have come probably rext to Euclid and algebra In his list of dislikes. But he was by no means what a good many me of genius are said to have been in their f vivacity and enjoyment of life. His ha insouciance was constant. Never was any lad at once so jovial, so healthy, and so sedentary. Good spirits and merriment seemed to enable im to dispense with the glow of cricket or football; and if in his still earlier days he ever 'fawged out,'' it must have been most bitterly against his will. We were now and then, indeed, out together in small fishing-parties, but it was for the talking, and the change, and the green fields, and the tea abroad instead of ac home—cakes, &c., accompanying (for he was always rather gustative, never greedy)—that Thackeray liked these expeditions. * * * * was eminently good-tempered to all, especlally the youngest boys, and nothing of a rant or bully.
